Rush County Community Foundation

live. live. local.

July 2022

Ahhh summertime and the local livin' is easy. It's that time of year when we all feel a little like a child again. The heat has a way of slowing us down and reminding us of what is important – like spending time with those we love. The community calendar is full of events if you need some ideas. And here's where you'll find your RCCF staff this season. We also recommend taking a stroll up Main Street to visit our local businesses and read the posters created by the City of Rushville to learn about some influential Rush County folks. Looking for a unique way to celebrate 200 years of our community? Get a special bicentennial postal cancellation. It's a great time to live life local, friends!

Ripples of Kindness: The Legacy of Helen and Jim Ewing

THE LEGACY OF HELEN AND JIM EWING

Kindness. It always matters. And like the stone that creates ripples when tossed into a pond, its effects can be far-reaching.

Roy Mohr first met Jim Ewing in 1968. Roy was a regular customer at J & H Hardware, the store Jim and his wife, Helen, owned in downtown Rushville. Roy and Jim became better acquainted through their volunteer work with Habitat for Humanity and St. Mary Catholic Church. Twenty years after their introduction, their relationship had grown into a friendship.

Jim and Helen didn't have children or any family nearby. Roy took it upon himself to offer his help when needed. When he tossed that stone, he couldn't have imagined the profound effect those ripples would create.

Grantee Update: The Open Resource

Success in implementing Rush County Broadband Task Force's Digital Inclusion Plan has taken several different forms. With help from the community, specifically a grant from RCCF, The Open Resource established a Digital Navigator project in 2021.

But success is more than statistics and numbers, it's also personal stories.

Hear from Digital Navigator, Ron Shields, about the ways The Open Resource can help you and anyone in Rush County with technology.

What Will Your Legacy Be?

Whether it's through the family you raise, the gardens you tend, the volunteer work you do, or the financial gifts you make – your legacy is an extension of your love through the hearts you've touched. Leaving a gift to RCCF after your lifetime allows you to touch the hearts of your community forever. That's the advantage of an endowment. And that's the beauty of paying it forward.
